CHAIR REPORT

1-8-2025

Dear Members and Groups of the Fellowship Service Conference,

It has been a couple of weeks since we held the annual F.S.C. in Hamburg PA. Our secretary and co-secretary have been working hard to get the minutes done so we can send them out for the Groups to read and review them. The minutes will be uploaded on the NAhelp.org website and also send out through the mailing list included with the Conference Report Magazine.

First of all, I would like to thank the Historical Perspective Group for hosting this event for another year. There's always a lot of effort that goes into this like negotiating with the facility, taking care of the registrations and making sure all the food and drinks are bought. Then there's also all the people that helped during the weekend to make sure things went smooth like cooking breakfast, making dinner, the cleaning of the facility and providing the technical equipment we need to run this Conference. I must have forgotten some of it but I wanted to give special thanks because these efforts really contribute to making this a successful and enjoyable weekend.

As always, we started the Conference with introductions. It's exciting to see new members show up and participate. Then we did the Group reports from the US and there were also reports sent in from overseas. These reports will be included to the minutes so people can read what is happening with the Groups in different parts of the world. We had a video-report from our friend from Iran who has been getting resistance from the Iranian service structure. Also, the Grateful Wake Up Group from Nebraska came with a report concerning problems with the Region in Nebraska. More details are in the minutes.

On Saturday we voted during old business. There were 7 Groups voting on the motions, 5 US Groups and 2 Dutch Groups. The voting is all documented in the Conference Report magazine and in the minutes.

One thing important mentioning is that motion 2025-A passed with a 100% Yes. That means there is a mechanism in place that will have motions deleted if the proposing Group is no longer participating at the Conference and no other Group will pick it up. Both Booklets that were up for approval passed, so we are excited to announce there are two pieces of literature added to the Approved Literature section.

Just like last year we have had an update from our agent about the legality of the Anonymi Foundation. After research the suggested way to go is to go as a PMA (Private Membership Association.) The Agent and board members have worked on a presentation and a document that includes the research. This is all included in the minutes. We think it is important for the Groups to look at this information and communicate with the Agent and the Board on how to move forward. It was a very positive meeting if I may say so.

The last day of the Conference we had an update from our web team. We thank them for the work that is put in for keeping the website updated and look for improvements. Also the online Audioplayers have shown to be a very good tool to reach addicts. In the Web report there are a couple of questions from the Team for the Groups. So please read the report as they are looking for direction.

Then we finished with elections of the Trusted Servants. All servants that were still in their term chose to remain in their position. We have a new chair servant for the next two years and that is Shawn, our previous co-chair. Cherinity has been elected as the co-chair. I want to thank you guys for stepping up and your willingness to serve. As for myself, this was my last year as the chair and I want to thank everyone for the trust and giving me the chance to serve. Looking forward to see the growth in numbers and in Spirit within our Fellowship. We are responsible.

In loving service,

Never Alone, Never Again Group in North Carolina

Motion for ASIS to maintain a stock pile of $5000 worth of literature and phone number where groups can order literature. For this to happen ASIS would have to rent storage space and assign a trusted servant to receive and fulfill the orders.

The trusted servant assigned would need to be given access to our current printing company. This could evolve into a service center as we grow. Passing this motion in no way precludes the inventory of literature to growing beyond $5000 amount

No Time for Resentments

Yesterday was a trying day for me. After a few days of feeling serene, some resentments began to come out and play. I was reminded of a recent conversation with a fellow addict, while talking about my pattern of complacency. "Red means stop, keep doing why you're doing." The resentment related to trust and respect. As I prayed and meditated, I remember all of the situations where my resentment towards someone else's disrespect towards me only led to me being hurt. Most of the time it didn't affect them. It affected me.

Rather, I let it affect me. I had chosen to let that resentment fester and turn on to fear of the future. Not today. I prayed and meditated and gratitude in some of the things around me. I enjoyed some one-on-one time with one of my kids, worked on some recovery and personal goals for the day, and finished cooking dinner early. After dinner I played a board game that my daughter got for Christmas with the family. Then I got ready for the next day, did some writing, yoga, and hopped on a late meeting before bed.

I have more important things to focus on than resentments or fear. The fellowship needs us. Another tool I used was talking with my sponsor this morning about resentments. He gave a lot of insights into resentments. It was very helpful to help me to continue to stay in the solution and accept life on life's terms. I don't know what the future holds, but today I can live in the moment and focus on the things that I can change, me. And how I react, and what I allow in my life

Faith Over Fear

Today, I will continue to trust in the process. I will live in the faith of the program, along with the guidance of my sponsorship and the treasures I have been blessed with over the years. Yes, I went through hard times, and I've also had good times, but this I know for sure: God's plans for me are truly better than anything I could come up with. No longer will I live in the shadows and darkness of addiction. I will no longer let fear control the very essence of who I am and what God is in the process of creating. For today, I have faith, and I am living in harmony—mind, body, and spirit.

A Power Greater Than Me

"You may be one of us who says, "I need help with my drug problem and I can see that N.A. had that alright, but the Second Step says this Power greater than ourselves will restore us to sanity and I'm not crazy. I just can't handle drugs." Grey Book, Step Two, Pages 34-35, Lines 30-1.

One of the first suggestions my sponsor gave me when I started working on Step Two was to look up the definition of sanity in the Grey Book. It said that sanity was having our priorities in order. I used to think like the header states. Step one says that we admit that our life is unmanageable. As I wrote on my first step, and even now in my everyday life, I notice and reflect on areas that should be my priorities. Lines 21-22 on page 34 says, "The Second Step is the important thing that must happen for us to achieve any sort of ongoing recovery.

I came here to get off drugs, that's it. But I found a lifestyle change and some form of spirituality that I had lost a long time ago. I can feel and see changes in my life that are only from a Power greater than myself. One of my favorite definitions for the word power is the capacity or ability to direct or influence the behavior of others or the course of events. I still don't have the greatest or deepest understanding of God. But I am no longer agnostic. I found that Power greater than myself through the rooms of N.A. By being attracted to what I saw in the people of my Home Group, Sponsor, and addicts from all over the world, that have directed by suggestions, influenced by the way that they carry and share these spiritual principles; I have come to have faith in a Power greater than myself.

There is a lot of sanity that has been restored in my life. I'm sitting in my car as I write this waiting to pick up my six-year-old from school with my three year old in the back seat playing games on my tablet. This is the same for me. A few short months ago, I would be in this same scenario, except I wouldn't be taking the suggestions of others and writing an article on Radio Free. I would be impatiently waiting for the school to let out with one of my drugs of choice in a bag in the backseat, and if I hadn't blew all of our money yet another drug at home in the shed. I would hurry and get the kids situated with snacks and homework started and leave my oldest in charge for 30 minutes to an hour. and go out to this same car and use.

Another area of sanity being restored in my life is showing up to work, even when I am sick. Even more recently I would get sick and call out of work. I'd get a doctor's note, I was sick, that's the truth. But honesty, I was making myself sicker by making an active choice to stay in fear and resentment, causing my own problems. During my first week when my wife and I got sick, my head was throbbing, my throat was sore, and my body aching. I want to turn the car around and go to bed. I heard another addict's voice in my head, who said did you call your sponsor before you decided to call out of work? Which I was suggested at my last job. That reminded me of having my priorities in order.

When I clocked in to work for the first time the screen listed a bunch of symptoms and to click yes or no if you had them. I had them all, except for a fever. Another area of sanity being restored is the need to be honest. So, I clicked no and proceeded to work. This reminded me of during my First Step when my sponsor suggested I look up the definition and difference between truth and honesty. It was true that I was sick, but if I'm honestI could work through it. I liked working through being sick to go out and buy drugs and use.

Another area that sanity is being restored is being able to focus on my personal business. In the past I didn't have my priorities in order and made decisions in a state of fear, and expectations on others. I also tried to manage my time and attention between too many focuses. I see a Power greater than myself at work while helping another addict assemble some furniture. As we talked, he asked about some of my long-term business goals and noticed that I was getting distracted from conversations that we had before and reminded me of where I said my focus would be on. When I got home and sat at my computer, I sent some papers from my drawer in the floor from my kids. The first paper I grabbed was one of my earlier step writings on where my focus and priorities should be and it was the exact message that we talked about earlier that night, in my own writing.

No matter what happens, or goes on through my day, God constantly shows me that I am in the right place, loved, supported, that I will be ok. I just have to continue to listen and surrender.

The Light Is Found in Connection and Willingness

We walk out of the darkness of our life's journey, and it often begins in challenging situations. Many individuals seek support from sponsorship and the NA community when facing these times of hardship. The path to healing may be difficult, but it is a worthwhile endeavor. Hope for a brighter future exists, even when circumstances seem dire. Don't quit five minutes before the miracle happens. Keep moving forward using the tools you have been blessed with. Building connections with others who understand can be incredibly beneficial to us. Remember, strength and resilience can develop from adversity. It is possible to find peace and freedom from the darkness of addiction. Through our willingness to accept and adopt our spiritual principles as our way of life, we can find the light and the way.

By an anonymous addict in Michigan

Freedom Through Truth

Recovery has been a true blessing; we are no longer walking in the darkness of addiction and all of its symptoms, for we have found the path to freedom. We are no longer blinded to the truth; today, we walk in that truth, knowing that we are only as sick as the secrets we keep. The severity of our disease is related to those secrets, and the truth—though painful—can set us free. Today, through our spiritual principles and the love of our sponsor, we have found the truth and walk in freedom, no longer in the darkness of those secrets but in the light of truth.

Shortcoming Withdrawal

I believe that in the course of carrying out our message it is better to not do something in the first place that could violate our Traditions than to stop after we have already started. We are in a dilemma as a Fellowship when it comes to this. On a large scale, NA Groups have been endorsing verification papers for addicts for decades in an effort to carry the message. Stopping this violation of our Traditions is difficult. It's almost like stopping using. Total abstinence is the best grounds for growth in recovery, so we don't recommend any addict start the process with one fix, pill or drink or snort. The reason for this is because once we start there is no telling if or when we will be able to stop.

This same idea applies to signing verification papers. This action has caused a lot of problems in Narcotics Anonymous for a long time and is a clear violation of our Traditions. All it takes to see it is a read through the Sixth Tradition essays and maybe a dictionary definition of the word endorse or how to endorse a check. Also, it affects anonymity by providing surveillance for other agencies and puts us on an unequal ground with those addicts because we are by default put in a position of authority over them. Not to mention how it affects our atmosphere of recovery when addicts are mandated to be there. This issue started a long time ago and I believe it was something that many Groups did without thinking that there was anything wrong with it since they saw their predecessors and other NA Groups doing it. When we stop doing something that has been happening for a long time there is a withdrawal period just like when we quit using.

When our Group stopped signing verification papers there was a lot of contention toward our Group and we were ostracized because of it but we could not unsee that we were violating our Traditions by doing it. Those times were really hard because our attendance went way down and there was no sign of it going up again any time soon. Coming out on the other end of it our Group has stayed committed even when there were only one or two Home Group Members showing up to the meetings but through PI and word of mouth our Group has grown and is attracting addicts that want what Narcotics Anonymous has to offer.

I believe that our Program is the Twelve Steps and Twelve Traditions of NA and that both of these sets of Principles work hand in hand, and we need the total Program to recover and to grow in unity. The Twelve Steps are how we recover personally but the Traditions, when applied provide the atmosphere where that can happen. We need that spiritual atmosphere of a meeting and identification to carry and receive the message. I believe that our work with the Group exposes our character defects. When it came to signing papers our Group's Members had to work through defects like people pleasing and approval seeking. We knew that just because most Groups were doing something did not make it right. In the Fourth Tradition it says that our Groups are not subject to outside control and that each Group has had to stand and grow on its own two feet. We could see pretty clearly the effects that signing papers was causing the Group, so we had a decision to make. Do we want to people please and negotiate our Traditions, or do we want to be Narcotics Anonymous and have a safe atmosphere of recovery where addicts can find the help they are looking for?

It is easy for someone who does not understand our Traditions to think it is horrible to stop signing papers. This is an emotionally charged issue. They may think that we don't care for those addicts that are mandated to be in meetings. The truth is, we want any addict seeking recovery to be able to attend an NA meeting freely. It's of no concern to us if they are mandated, we just won't violate our Traditions to accommodate whoever sent them there. We know that if we stray from our Traditions that our message gets diluted, and our atmosphere vanishes. Without these principles NA will no longer exist. So, in fact we care a great deal. We want NA to remain pure so that every addict who attends can find what we are supposed to be offering.

Depression is on the Relapse Trail

Depression is a subject many addicts don't want to talk about. There is a stigma that we are weak if we are fighting depression. Heck, our literature in the Gray Book even says in our 2nd Step "We are now part of the Ultimate Reality that has brought Order out of Chaos. We are no longer fighting fear, anger, guilt, remorse, self-pity, anxiety, depression and a thousand other ills." The question is are we fighting these symptoms or are we practicing a daily first and second Step and Trusting that we can be restored to sanity? Many use the excuse of the symptoms of our disease being too difficult to use drugs to combat these symptoms. We have a spiritual problem that can't be cured by using drugs. So, what do we do? Many refuse to get totally honest and share when having these difficulties. Some share but never seek solutions. We have to ask our Greater Power what the solutions are. I have yet to hear anyone argue that exercise is the best way to deal with depression. So, when I have physical ailments that prevent me from walking my disease thinks it can attack.

Lying in bed giving my leg time to heal is not what I want to do, but I know it is necessary at times. What has happened due to that is not the best way to face life. I have made a decision to change some of life's habits once again. I've done well with eating right this week, but now I must face the world as I have to return to work tonight. I also need to start exercising along with eating right. Many may ask why is this being shared? This is one way the disease of addiction is affecting my life and I need to get honest about it or nothing will change. If we don't change our patterns to healthy patterns, we will stay sick. My Greater Power didn't make me to stay on a pity pot or to be fighting these symptoms. So, Surrender, I must. Let go and give it to my Greater Power by living a third and fourth Step in this area of my life. It always comes back to living the Steps, doesn't it? Time for a u-turn away from the relapse trail and back on the recovery road which leads to my Greater Power's will for my life which is always better than mine.

Guided by Principles Through the Darkness

Being clean and seeking our truth can be very difficult at times, as darkness surrounds us. Our spiritual principles and sponsorship can bring light to the path we travel. These principles offer solace and strength in times of struggle. They provide a framework for understanding our experiences and finding meaning in them. With each step forward, we move closer to healing of the mind, body, and spirit. The darkness may linger, but the light of these principles guides us. We find hope in the possibility of transformation. Through this process, we discover the resilience of our spirit.

By an anonymous addict in Michigan

The Ongoing Miracle of Growth

Life's journey in recovery shapes us in profound ways. Through experiences in which we find acceptance and surrender, we grow and mature. Contentment often blossoms from these lessons life presents to us. We must not quit five minutes before the miracle happens. This path, while unique to each individual, is a universal experience. We adapt and evolve, becoming stronger and wiser. Embracing the present moment allows for true appreciation. Growth is a continuous process, and contentment is a worthy pursuit. May we all find peace and freedom in our journeys.

By an anonymous addict in Michigan

The Journey to Self-Discovery

The path to self-discovery can be a winding one. It takes courage to confront the obstacles that hold us back. For us, fear can be a powerful force, shaping choices and limiting potential. Addiction can cast a long shadow of darkness over us, obscuring the way forward. But within each of us lies the strength to break free. The journey may be long and difficult, but with the help of a sponsor and spiritual principles, we can find our way. Embrace the process of growth and healing, for it is in the striving that we truly discover ourselves. Remember, hope is a constant companion on this journey and in life.

A collection of Grey Book articles

All my life I thought I was alone, almost gave up, thought I had to settle for a miserable life, came to NA through others, got in touch with the Gray and this has opened all doors.

Coming to my first meeting, the group which I started serving later gave me their numbers on a list in a gray book. They told me to read it and to keep coming back, every meeting I visited had (and still has) a grey book on the table. I was interested cause as an addict, I liked getting stuff for nothing and a free book felt like a win to me.

I didn't immediately start reading, I kept it as a sort of trophy, back then I felt proud that I even showed up and that was enough.

When I felt enough desperation and discomfort with myself I decided to read a little, it felt a little uneasy at first, it was a mirror. It felt like a blessing to read cause it hit close to home, I could relate to the addict written about in the literature. My last bit of denial was stripped away and I finally felt some relief.

I could identify that I am an addict and didn't feel like running anymore. It made me feel less alone.

The bizarre and wonderful fact is, there are people who wrote this book, whom I have never met or am never going to meet who have put my thoughts, my ideas and experiences on paper.

The grey book slowly became a part of my daily recovery, everytime I open it up it seems to fall into place magically, on a page or paragraph I needed to read. I can't explain it but it works. The raw experience of people that have gone before me gives me trust in this program, that total abstinence works and a new way of life is possible. This remains true.

I was not alive when this book was written and yet the identification is of great value. It is important for me as an addict to see that the program works, now and then, it is universal, spiritual principles are universal, our experiences are universal.

There have been moments where it made me laugh or cry, moments where it has given me courage to face myself and reality exactly how it is. It has given me growing knowledge of our steps, our traditions and the principles and I honestly believe that without these and the grey book, my recovery wouldn't be the same.

I am grateful for what we have, for our ongoing growth together. The message is hope and the promise of freedom from active addiction.

By an anonymous addict in the Netherlands

The first time I read the Graybook, it opened up a whole new world for me. I vividly remember how special it felt to read a book that described exactly how I felt and the thought patterns swirling around in my mind. For the first time in my life, I felt that there was something that understood me. Could it be that I wasn't as unique and different as I thought? Until then, I had never met people who delved as deeply into their thoughts as I did. I had always felt like an outsider, and this book, combined with the entire program, helped me see that I have a disease. After reading the book, I was also able to truly acknowledge that I am an addict and to seek connection with other recovering addicts who have also read this book and shared their experience with me. Even now, when I open the book and read a paragraph, I recognize and see new things in myself. The book's simplicity and rawness have greatly helped me to stay clean for already a couple of years now. I didn't know where to begin, and this book was a very good starting point for me. I am grateful that this book exists alongside the program, and that it allows me to live a clean and happy life. I hope every addict gives this book a chance and reads it—it has given me so much more than I ever thought it could give me back.

By an anonymous addict in the Netherlands

The Gray book has given me many insights regarding how an addict thinks and what the solutions are. The disturbed way of thinking and the behaviour of an addict is described in a direct way, from which I get a lot of recognition; it is not because of a moral shortcoming or that I am not good enough. Because other addicts and I recognise ourselves in this, I feel less alone. We almost always read from the text during meetings. I often read something I needed to hear. It's nice to be able to read that back at home and make the recognition that I am an addict.

The book is written by addicts and therefore feels personal, not professionals putting labels on to diagnose, but a self-help book to read and get recognition from. A flyer lists the 5 tools, which include reading and, in this case, reading NA literature. At home, I sometimes find myself with something and then I flip open a random page that said exactly something I needed to hear/read. An example: I thought again 'I can do it on my own. I'm doing fine and I don't need anyone' and I flip open a page that said 'we told ourselves we were self-sufficient, but time and again it was proved that this was an illusion. We need each other'
